

David Palmer AKA DeKoder

David Palmer's career is upper tier and expansive. He is the current drummer for Rod Stewart and original member of the 80's super group ABC. He co-wrote the groundbreaking ABC album Lexicon of Love which was produced by legendary Trevor Horn. He worked with award winning composer Ryuichi Sakamoto who won an Oscar, a Grammy and a Golden Globe for his music in The Last Emperor. (Sakamoto has made a career of crossing musical and technological boundaries). From 1988 to 1994, David was a member of the band The The, which was responsible for the albums Infected, Mind-Bomb, and Dusk. Together these albums have sold millions worldwide. For the albums Mind-bomb and Dusk he worked with co-member Johnny Marr, who was a member of The Smiths before The The. In 1990 he collaborated with the supergroup Electronic, which was comprised of New Order's Bernard Sumner and Johnny Marr, with the tracks "Feel Every Beat" and "Getting Away With It." Palmer also drummed for the Japanese electronic band Yellow Magic Orchestra on their farewell tour in 1983. eral music supervisors. They were hired for the original Showtime Series Sexual Healing. Current and future works for this dynamic team include Ferrari Challenge and E-Racer for Playstation 3, as well as many more projects to come.